

Instructors Wanted

The Cedar River Watershed is seeking knowledgeable and passionate field instructors to teach family and adult field programs related to the natural and cultural history of the Pacific Northwest. Educators, scientists, naturalists, historians, writers, storytellers and artists are invited to submit proposals.

The Cedar River Watershed is part of a rich tradition connecting people and water. Nestled above the shores of Rattlesnake Lake near North Bend, the Cedar River Watershed Education Center is operated by Seattle Public Utilities. Only steps away lies the 91,000-acre Cedar River Municipal Watershed, the primary source of clean, safe tap water for the greater Seattle area. Public Field Programs

Connecting people to the source of Seattle's drinking water and its unique cultural and natural history,
inspiring confidence, stewardship and sustainability.

average 10 – 20 participants and last from a few hours up to two days. Most classes include field and classroom components. Public programs offer a rare opportunity to glimpse the protected watershed. We encourage our instructors to teach programs that foster connection and understanding of natural and cultural history through the unique features of the Watershed and Education Center.

All Proposals should include the following:

1. Name, address, email, and telephone numbers
2. Program title, description, general objectives and goals for participants
3. Program itinerary and course outline
4. Audience age range
5. Preferred length and dates
6. Facilities needed and geographic areas where you would like the program to take place
7. Instructor fee
8. Brief Biography

Please submit proposals by December 1st to be considered for the following calendar year.

PROPOSALS & QUESTIONS

Cedar River Watershed Education Center
19901 Cedar Falls Rd SE North Bend, WA 98045

